

NEW RECORD

Made at Camp Perry by Lieut. Miller--Will Go to Europe on Rifle Team.

Lieut. Ernest Miller, of this place, made two new records for the United States at the contest shooting at Camp Perry Saturday. He finished with the second high score and has been picked as one of a team of eight men to go to Europe to take part in the English national matches and the international matches to be held at Paris, France. They will sail on July 2.

In securing on Saturday a score of 1,001 Miller makes a record for the United States. He also made a record of 97 out of a possible 100, the best shooting ever done on any American range.

Capt. Eddy with a total of 2,547 had high score in the contest shooting, with Miller second with 2,532. Capt. South, of Wilmington, had a total of 2,235 and will also be one of the team to go to Europe.

Miller is a member of the local company of National Guards and is one of the best rifle shots in America. He has been a member of the company, regimental and state teams for several years.

His friends here are delighted over his success in the contest shooting and that he will have the opportunity to take part in the foreign matches, where they expect him to keep up his good work.

HUGH FULLERTON IS GREATEST

Baseball Reporter in World, According to Article by Grantland Rice

IS VITAL PART OF GAME

Short Character Sketch, Telling of Success of Former Hillsboro Boy in the American Magazine.

The following short character sketch of Hugh S. Fullerton, written by Grantland Rice, is taken from the June number of the American Magazine. "Ching", as he is best known to the people of Hillsboro, was born and reared here and did his first newspaper work on the NEWS-HERALD. The article is illustrated with an excellent full page photograph of "Ching."

Any man who has seen 3561 games of baseball, who has scored 178,569 put outs, 98,562 assists, 14,442 stolen bases and 3987 double plays, must be fairly well posted upon the lore and workings of America's national game.

Hugh S. Fullerton--Chicago "Chooey"--has not only seen 3561 games while scoring 178,569 put outs, 98,562 assists and the rest of it, but in each play of each game he has taken the time to figure out the whys and the wherefores--the causes and effects--as he went along, with time enough and energy enough and enthusiasm enough left to look about him and reflect upon whatever else life had to show along the trail that was interesting or complex or both.

Fullerton is a vital part of baseball. The game has produced but one Wagner, one Anson, one Mathewson, one Lajoie, one Cobb--and one Hugh S. Fullerton.

There are others who have seen as many games--who have watched these games as closely. But there have been few others with all of this who have had as keen an insight into the spirit of both play and player and who have achieved deductions with so much skill and keenness--who have excavated as deeply beneath the surface for all of importance that might lie below the obvious and who have applied the result of these excavations to the general trend of the contest.

To have the correct answer one must know Fullerton. If Hughie were breaking in as a young pitcher he would be listed by the war scribes as a "tall and rangy guy." He is well over six feet and his frame is as lank as his eyes are keen and as his drawl is magnetic, and there isn't much around him that his eyes miss seeing or that his ears miss hearing. On a training trip with some ball club, no one will watch the work of the players with any more intentness. But in addition Hughie is reflecting upon the different shades of climate encountered, the varieties of food and cooking along the way, the character and actions of the natives met with in each hamlet and the modes and customs of the trail he is taking in general detail. It may be the manner in which french fried potatoes are handled one day and the condition of the putting greens upon some local course the next, but in either instance it is a certainty that Hughie has studied both carefully and overlooked no point of interest in his summing up.

The only wonder is that he can go to all of it with so much enthusiasm. His specialty is whatever happens to be at hand--whether it be baseball, cooking, golf, climate, people or local industries. For Fullerton is almost as much of an expert at cookery and climate as he is an expert upon diamond affairs. Whether it be at broiling a steak, boiling an egg, compiling meringue, frying a sausage or baking a pie--or the general average of cross currents in South Carolina or dry days in Oregon, the author of "Touching Second," "The Inside Game," etc., is primed and poised for the test.

After graduating from Ohio State University and working through a spring training on a country weekly, Fullerton broke into baseball as a scribe under Comiskey's regime in Chicago. And like the old Roman, one of the chief causes of his success has been the faculty of making friends and interesting them with a magnetism that isn't to be denied.

This faculty has kept him in close touch with the players and he is one of the few baseball writers who can "pan" a ball player in picturesque detail and still hold his friendship; for the player knows that Fullerton is fair and will be quick enough to change when there is cause for praise. One would think that after scoring

JUDGE HUGHES ENDORSED

For Governor by Democrats and Delegation Instructed--No Contests.

The Democratic County Convention to select delegates to the different district and the state conventions met at the Court House Wednesday afternoon at 1:30.

While there had been many rumors of fights over different matters, before convening all differences had been settled and there were no contests.

H. P. Morrow was selected chairman of the convention. J. H. Williams, Secretary.

Upon motion T. E. Moorehead, Jas. H. Williams and T. H. Duff were appointed on the committee to select a list of delegates and alternates to the state conventions.

While the committee was out a resolution heartily endorsing Judge O. H. Hughes for the Democratic nomination was presented and unanimously adopted with considerable enthusiasm. The delegation to the State Convention was instructed to do all in its power to secure his nomination.

The delegates and alternates to the State Convention are: Delegates--L. L. Faris, Walter Bacon, D. C. Winkle, A. E. Hough, John McMullen, Frank Wiedman, Joseph Miller. Alternates--H. P. Morrow, J. D. Bobbitt, Ben B. Vance, Ray Harris, L. L. Gall, George Bonar, J. P. Elton.

While no action was taken by the convention in regard to the unit rule every member of the state delegation is personally pledged against it. A number of the members of the delegation are bitter opponents of Gov. Harmon, L. L. Fa is having been one of the Anti-Harmon candidates for delegate to the National Convention from this district.

178,569 put outs, the average scorer would be about ready to close his book and turn to something else. But the most rabid fanatic in the land is not more interested in the present pennant campaigns than the man who has in detail 18 flag races in the past.

One of the chief causes of Fullerton's success as a baseball historian, beyond his own insight and powers of deduction, is the great esteem in which he is held by most players and the faith they have in his judgment. Here's an example. One morning he was out completing some base running tests with Tyrus Cobb, the Detroit star. Cobb faced a hard contest that afternoon and yet continued to make play after play from home plate to the different bases while Hughie held the stop watch. Finally Fullerton noticed that Cobb's time was lagging considerably. He looked at his watch and saw that the speed tests had extended beyond two hours and yet the fleet outfielder had made no complaint of overwork. The answer was Fullerton--a mixture of likeable drawl, friendly manner, keen pleasant eyes and attractive personality that made even the Georgia Ghost forget that his 10,000 underpinnings were getting to be a bit sagged and weary.

EXAMINATION OF THIS COUNTY

By State Inspector Doyle Shows All Errors Only Amount to $79.78

OFFICIALS COMMENDED

For Their Efficiency and Accuracy and Makes Few Criticisms--The Inspection Covers 18 Months.

Only $79.78 was erroneously paid out by the county officials of this county from September 1, 1910, to March 1, 1912, as shown by the report of State Examiner F. H. Doyle, who completed the examination here on April 18.

That so few mistakes would have been made in a period of 18 months is the highest praise that could possibly be given the efficiency of the county officials.

Examiner Doyle commends all of the officers for the excellent manner in which their work is done and for their courtesy to him. All but $14.50 of the amount found to have been erroneously drawn was at once paid into the county.

A summary of the findings follows: Charles D. Johnson, Treasurer, excessive payment to clerk in treasurer's office, $34.06; Carey Long, Sheriff, excessive payment of salary for first two months of year 1911, $18.32; T. M. Watts, Probate Judge fees erroneously withheld from Probate Judge's fee fund, $12.30; J. W. Matthews, Coroner, unauthorized fees taxed in coroner's cost bill, $2; C. C. Shade, Court Constable, duplication of per diem fees received, $7.50; Wm. H. Hopkins, Infirmary Director, unauthorized per diem as infirmary director, $5.

The Commissioners allowed Treasurer Johnson for 1911 for clerk hire $800. During the year 1911 Mr. Johnson expended for clerk hire $834.66. The excess of $34.66 over $800, the amount allowed by the commissioners Mr. Doyle held could not be legally paid out of the county funds. It has been paid back into the county fund. Mr. Doyle says, "The books of the treasurer's office are well kept" and "The treasurer is entitled to commendation for his practice of keeping the bulk of the county money in the depositories where it can be earning interest for the county, instead of keeping a large surplus in the county treasury."

The finding of $18.32 against Sheriff Long is due to a misunderstanding as to whether his salary was based on the census of 1900 or 1910. The first two months of his term Mr. Long drew his salary on the basis of the 1900 census, which gave him $150 a month. Under the census of 1910 his salary is $140.84 a month. Attorney General Hogan held that the salary should be based on the 1910 census. Under this ruling Mr. Long drew excessive fees of $18.32. He has paid it back into the treasury.

Mr. Doyle comments as follows on the conduct of the sheriff's office: "The sheriff's cash book is exceptionally well kept and all moneys received by said officer were accounted for. The expense accounts of the sheriff were checked in detail and found regular in all respects."

The $12.30 found against Judge Watts, as probate judge, is made up of several small fees, where mistakes were made on the cash book. These mistakes were at once rectified by Judge Watts when called to his attention. Mr. Doyle comments as follows on the conduct of the office: "All records, dockets, etc., were neatly and accurately kept."

In inquests over the bodies of Ella Laura Horton and William Macy, J. W. Matthews, coroner, charged a fee of $1 in each case for holding inquest. Mr. Doyle states that there is no authority for such a charge by the coroner and that he should pay the $2 into the county treasury.

C. C. Shade, court constable, was paid two per diem fees of $2.50 each for Nov. 23, 1910, and April 25 and 27, 1911. Mr. Doyle holds that more than one per diem fee is not permissible for each single day. Mr. Shade acted as court constable on each of the days mentioned for both the Common Pleas and Circuit Courts, having a separate appointment for each court.

Wm. H. Hopkins was paid $5 his per diem compensation for Jan. 2 and 3, 1911. Mr. Hopkins' term expired on Jan. 1, 1911, so Mr. Doyle holds this payment unauthorized, although Mr. Hopkins worked those two days.

NEEDS OF SCHOOLS

Subject of Address of Dr. Withrow Before the Mother's Club Friday.

On last Friday evening at the Washington School Building Dr. J. M. Withrow lectured on "What the Public School should do for the Child" before a large and interested audience. Dr. Withrow has long been a member of the Cincinnati School Board and is eminently fitted to talk on this subject.

He is a strong advocate of shorter hours of study from books and more manual training and domestic science and thoroughly believes in the use of school houses as social centers. He spoke at some length of the special schools for retarded pupils and the great progress made. His remarks concerning the continuation school were especially interesting.

It is a law in Cincinnati that after a pupil leaves school at the age of fourteen he is compelled to attend a continuation school one afternoon a week until sixteen years old. In this school he is taught something useful and in line with his work or trade, the boy from the machine shop is instructed in mechanics and the girl from the ribbon counter in the large department store learns something of the value and manufacture of ribbons.

Dr. Withrow told of the splendid schools of Germany with their free training in forty different vocations, their purpose being the prevention of emigration and the building up of manufactures at home.

In Dr. Withrow's judgment the two evils hardest to overcome in building up the Public Schools are the prejudice of the ignorant and the influence of politicians who see loss of power in general education.

The following comments by Mr. Doyle on the Infirmary speak for themselves:

"The infirmary superintendent, directors and matron take a deep interest in the infirmary and the institution seems to be well managed."

"The records of expenditures disclose the fact that rigid economy has been practiced by the board at all times."

"All moneys that have come into the hands of the directors, have been promptly paid into the treasury."

No finding was made against either John Q. Roads or W. A. Teter, the two men who have filled the auditor's office during the time covered by the examination. Among other things Mr. Doyle reports as follows: "All books and records were found neatly and accurately kept. Much credit is due to both incumbents and their assistants for the system found to exist in this office. Scarcely any improvement could be suggested in any department."

Everything was found absolutely correct in the office of J. Ed. Shannon, clerk of courts, by the examiner, who says: "The cash book and record of accrued fees have been kept as prescribed by this department. The various records were carefully checked by your examiner and it was found that they were accurate in all respects."

No finding was made against either O. A. Landess or John S. Faris, the two incumbents of the recorder's office, during the period covered by the examination. Mr. Doyle pays the following compliment to both officers: "The cash books kept by both incumbents of this office within the period of their examination were carefully checked and found correct. All books and records designated by section 2757 G. C. are found in this office and the same are nicely and neatly kept in a fair and legible handwriting which reflects credit upon the office. In short every detail of the office is conducted in a manner such as makes it satisfactorily meet every public demand."

A. G. Cockerill, C. N. Carey, C. F. Robers, Harry C. Hiestand and C. C. Kesler were the commissioners within the period covered by the inspection. Mr. Doyle says: "The duties pertaining to this important office, seem to have been well performed throughout the period." He suggests that the commissioners in allowing clerk hire should take into consideration that the statutes contemplate that an officer devote his entire time to the duties of his office and should not expect a clerk to be provided to perform the work of the officer. He also advises the commissioners not to buy culvert pipe by the lineal foot.

Mr. Doyle's report discloses that the people of Highland county have had efficient and competent officers during the period covered by the examination.
